PS:

I can consider my para. 4 a fait accompli . . . and now it's up to Lyndon's tried-and-true postal department to deliver the good(ie)s!

Here's one I thought you'd get a laff out of: A few weeks ago I thought I heard a thing on one of our local radio stations about Mark Lane giving a lecture at the Portland campus of the University of Maine. So I called UMP (Univ. of Me., Portland) to inquire about the whole thing. Before I was thru, I'd talked with four different offices on the campus (including Student Affairs, Publicity, and the Dean!) and nowhere did I find ONE PERSON who had EVER heard of him. I was aghast, of course . . . and in a way it was laughable, altho it annoyed me no end to think that they could all be so unknowing about a man whose book was on so many best seller lists for so long. But anyway, I never did track it down, so I can only assume that either I dreamed it, or that he is to lecture at the Orono campus which is really a million miles away!

And now back to the grind.
